

Community service unit

Vision

To be a stimulating environment for the preparation of health awareness programs, using accurate scientific methods, through which the faculty's mission in the field of community service is achieved.

Mission

Strengthening the relationship between the faculty and the community groups and disseminating the highest degree of health and practical thinking for its members, using the expertise of the available and qualified cadres to provide services and awareness consultations to the community.

Objectives

- Strengthening the faculty's relationship with the community.
- Develop a sense of belonging to the community and motivate to contribute to community service.
- Strengthening the links between the faculty and community members and institutions, and providing training through the faculty's various departments.
- Providing useful services and consultations for the various segments of society, raising the level of scientific and technical qualification, and developing experience and general culture for members of society.
- Studying and proposing general policies for organizing community and environmental conferences and scientific symposia that serve the surrounding community.
- Conducting awareness campaigns to raise community awareness.

Unit's tasks

- Preparing annual plans for specific programs for the purpose of their implementation.
- Upgrading the faculty by documenting the activities and participation of faculty members in community service.
- Coordination with the faculty departments to develop targeted activities to serve the community.
- Preparing an annual report on the accomplished works serving the community and writing future recommendations for the development of the environment surrounding the community.
